

Living Seeds of History: The John Stokes and Mary's Gardens Exhibit

Stephanie Shreffler and Kayla Harris
University of Dayton

University of Dayton Libraries

- Made up of Roesch Library and the Marian Library
- 3 distinct archives/special collections areas:
 - University Archives and Special Collections (Roesch Library)
 - U.S. Catholic Special Collection (Roesch Library)
 - Marian Library
- Collaboration across University Libraries was crucial in planning process

What is a Mary's Garden?

Indoor Garden

Archival Displays

Art Gallery

John S. Stokes Jr.

Environmentalist

John S. Stokes Jr. (1920–2007) was a passionate advocate of Mary Gardens and co-founder of the Mary's Gardens movement.

Activist

Stokes's legacy covers the second half of the twentieth century and serves as an important example of African and Catholic history in the United States. In this exhibit, explore artifacts and documents from the John Stokes and Mary's Gardens collection, donated to the Maria Goretti Library in May 2013.

Catholic

There is more to see!

Special thanks to past and present Libraries Advisory Council outreach team members for their work on this exhibit:

Margaret Barkley
Sue Ellen Boesch
Sarah Cahalan
Jane Dunwoodie
Jillian Ewalt
Kayla Harris
Colleen Hoelscher
Pamela Houk
Katy Kelly

Gary Marcinowski, S.M.
Georgiana Nye
Nichole Rustad
Virginia Saxton
Stephanie Shreffler
Linda Skuns
Kathleen Tiller
Ann Zlotnik

Our gratitude to University Libraries staff and other individuals:

Brother A. Joseph Barrish, S.M.
Michele Devitt
Olivia Gillingham
Risé Kreitzer
Diane Osman
Tina Powell
Paul Remsen
Fran Rice
Maureen Schlangen
Raymond Voelker

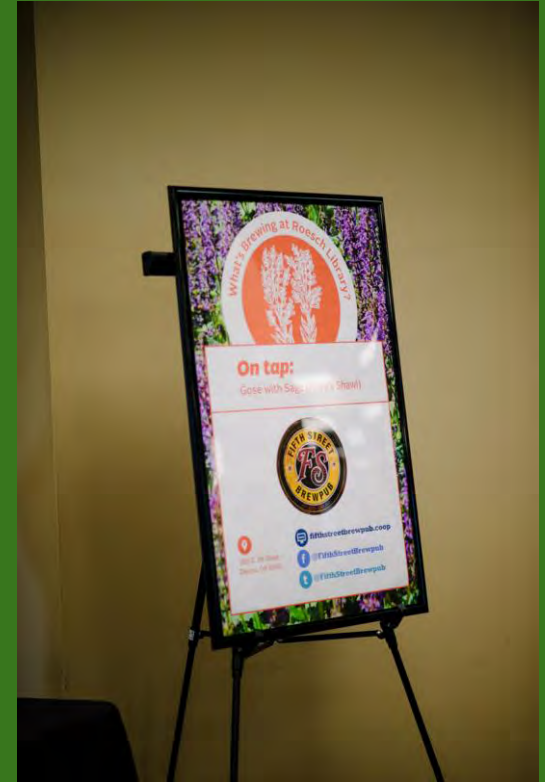

... in Our Lady,
Stokes Jr.

Challenges and Opportunities

- Committee Composition
 - Library Advisory Council
 - UD employee changes
- Garden Logistics
 - Available flower varieties
 - Last minute changes
 - Mulch
 - Insects

Partnerships and Collaborations

Takeaways

- Look for ways to make archival exhibits interactive
- Friends' groups can come up with creative ideas that “break the mold”
- Tie your exhibits into programs or events that you are already hosting

Thank You!
Questions?