A Higgins Sunday Social

circa 1930

The Higgins Sunday Socials were weekly events at 620 South Perry St. Each child was expected to prepare a song, scripture and or recitation. The cousins, excited to play, were often shooed from beneath the stairs of the adjoining 121 South Short Wilkinson St.

The secret place under the stairs had sheltered the fleeing enslaved, ushered through Dayton's Underground Railroad by Charity Broady, area abolitionists and members of the First Wesleyan Methodist Church.
